

Lucy Forrestal, Tui Christie and Roman Ratcliff:

We Still Live With Our Parents

Featuring 2017 Class Comedian graduates Lucy Forrestal (2017 Wellington Comedy Awards Best Newcomer Nominee), Tui Christie and Roman Ratcliff, We Still Live With Our Parents is a totally tubular hour of comedic awkwardness that will transport you to the wicked 80s and all the way back to 2018, with a few stops in between.

They weren't alive in the 80s, but their hair, clothing and all-round suburban outlook on life begs to differ (minus the racist parts, of course).

We Still Live With Our Parents is a show written, produced and crafted by teenagers. Lucy, Tui and Roman all completed the 2017 Class Comedians programme and from there decided to continue their comedy careers.

We Still Live With Our Parents shows the thinking of three not-so-typical teens, including their views on society in the past, present, and future. It hopes to appeal to a large range of audiences, including teenagers, adults, and people who still live with their parents. The show will be made up of individual sets and a number of sketches performed together.
